

Payment of your child benefits on a non-Belgian account

Declaration of the beneficiary

For a woman mention the maiden name Your name

First name

Street and house number

Look at the back of your identity card (e-id)

Postal code and city

National Insurance number

The child benefit is deposited to the mother or the person that replaces her in the household.

I request the payment of the Belgian child benefits on account

(You can find the number on your bank statements)

IBAN _ _ _ _ _

BIC _ _ _ _ _

It can only be paid on a bank account in her name or on a shared bank account of the two partners, in which she can also perform actions.

☒ Is in the name of.....

☒ Address.....

.....

I declare that I have correctly completed this form and give permission to my family allowance fund to check the data with my bank. I undertake to immediately notify my family allowance fund if I no longer have access to the family allowances on the account. In this case, I open a new account number.

Date

Signature

Telephone :

E-mail : @

IMPORTANT! If, after checking with your bank, it appears that the account number indicated is not in your name, the family allowance fund will ask you to indicate another account number of which you are the owner or co-owner.

This information is required to pay family allowances. If you wish to consult or correct your personal data, please contact your Family Allowance Fund at the address above.

Why do we pay your child benefit on your bank account?

The deposit of your child benefit on a bank account is simple, safe and free.

Who completes this form ?

The form must be completed by the recipient (usually the mother).

What kind of bank account ?

Family allowances are paid only on a current account in your name or on a common account in your name and on, for example : your spouse or partner.

The payment of family allowances to a savings account, investment account, term account or the account of a third person, even if you are an agent, is not allowed.

KidsLife will check the data you have entered on the attached form with your bank. If your bank informs us that the financial account you have entered is not a current account or that you are not the (co-) account holder, then the family allowance fund will ask you to provide another account number.

If you do not provide an account number, family benefits will be paid by means of a circular check.

Your advisor

Payment on a current account is simple and safe!